

ABSTRACT

A method, system and computer program for a computer message storage system such as electronic mail. This involves instancing a software archiver to relocate messages according to age and instancing a software backup subsystem to backup storage groups, to maintain a patch file and to copy to a backup file.